

A yellow Hitachi excavator is positioned on a sandy beach, its large bucket resting on a massive pile of discarded plastic waste. The waste consists of numerous white plastic bags, crumpled sheets, and other debris. In the background, the ocean waves are visible under a heavy, grey, overcast sky. The excavator's arm and bucket are prominent in the foreground, and a person is visible in the operator's cab. The overall scene conveys a message of environmental cleanup and marine pollution reduction.

Eat, Pray, Litter: The Truth About Tourists in Bali

By Renne Simpson

Bali was not the Eat, Pray, Love paradise I always imagined. I had even admitted it. On one hand, there was that handful of memorable Zen moments I wrote about and will forever cherish, but on the other end of this wacky spectrum are the moments that made me give Bali a serious side-eye.

'Garbage season on the beaches' - when does it start/end?

23 August 2015, 12:26

Dear fellow Tripadvisor users,

I am travelling to Bali in early November and am now in the process of selecting accommodation. While doing internet research, I find several mentions of something called the 'garbage season' on the west-facing

"Strong waves and lots of trash dumped in beach"

Reviewed 19 December 2016 via mobile

The beach is generally okay, the tide had brought so much trash, couldn't swim because the beach is so dirty and has big waves, many surfers, lots of street sellers that try to sell random things on the beach, the beach chair rentals are around 50k each

Rubbish on beaches and in the sea?

29 November 2016, 02:38

Hello All,

I have a trip to Bali planned for next June.

I have read a few articles recently stating that Bali suffers from bad amounts of rubbish / trash on the beaches and in the sea? Is this true
